LEAGUE LOOKING FOR BALL TOWNS

Latest Reports Fail to Show Anybody Willing to Fall for Butte Bunch.

Up until press time this morning there has been no more changes in the circuit of the Intermountain league. Neither has Butte quit any more. But there are still a few more towns in Montana to hear from, there is no reason why several changes cannot be made the coming week. The list sent out from Billings on Saturday night to the effect that they would plant the Butte bunch in that town, if they saw them coming first, ought to show the managers of the Intermountain league that the boasted popularity of baseball in Montana and especially Butte is a pipe dream.

It is but two weeks that the Butte press was sending out the reports that the Intermountain league deserted Boise and Salt Lake because they were bum baseball towns. Now the league is trying to lose Butte, and if any other town in the state can be induced to adopt the Butte orphans, it will be all off with the Montana copper camp.

Manager Farnsworth of the present Roseman team probably realizes now that he made a mistake in not holding his team in Salt Lake and place the remnants of the league in Ogden with Gilman as a manager. Now the league is trying to lose Butte, and if any other town in the state can be induced to adopt the Butte orphans, it will be all off with the Montana copper camp.

With the whole baseball proposition up in the air, as it is at present, it is to be had Jack Grim and Con Struthers are not on hand to tell how it happened.

That perfect brand of talk given out so freely before the opening of the season would sound a little out of place at the present time. Of course they might "spin" some of that "inside dope" again and get a few to fall for it, but hardly the general public.

The whole Intermountain league was a mistake from the start. There is no use beating around the bush about it, and there is no use of the Montana towns yelling that Salt Lake and Boise are bum baseball towns in an effort to save themselves. The thing could not be done. The season learned this time should be a thorough one. The next time a bunch of baseball highways men to any of these cities and talks baseball league, they should be given the tin can and told to move on. Salt Lake will not stand for a little bum league like the Intermountain, neither will Boise or Butte.

All three of these cities are good baseball towns if they ever get this in the only way in a class league.
